The approaching month of July will give a great deal of rain, as in 1880, over a large portion of the United States and Can-ada, while in Great Britain the weather will in all probability be likewise stormy and wet. The storms of wind, thunder and lightning are likely to be severe and frequent. The heaviest rains for New York and vicinity would locate after the 20th, and probably o the 21st or 22d dates; between the 10th and 15th days an exceedingly hot term is likely to be experienced in both the United States and Canada. Within a few days from the close of the month, probably about the 27th or 28th, a cool wave will occur, carrying frosts in Canada, and cool weather generally, with storms of wind and rain throughout the United States. Where storms have been severely felt in the western and southwestern States during June, there also will the severest storms of July be experienced. Notwithstanding these frequent and severe storms during the month, frequent alternations of fine, hot weather will counteract to a great extent the damage done to crops in general in the West. The entrance of Jul yin Canads, and also to a considerable extent in the United States, will be cool and showery, and the present lookout for the 4th is not a very
